700-plus jam ASES to see Sir Edmund

Hillary gets warm welcome in Minden

by Jerry Grozelle

The opportunity to meet a world famous adventurer drew more than 700 people of all ages to Archie Stouffer Elementary School on November 6.

Sir Edmund Hillary, who is best known as the first man to reach the summit of Mount Everest, paid a visit to Minden on the invitation of the Minden and Haliburton Rotary Clubs. Hillary was a member of the first motorized party to reach the South Pole and he has also scaled other mountains that presented unusual challenges.

The visit to Minden was a fund-raiser for the Sir Edmund Hillary Foundation. The Canadian Foundation, which was founded by former pro football player Zeke O'Connor, raises funds to build schools, hospitals and medical clinics in Nepal. It also provides funding for a reforestation program in the Himalayas. O'Connor gave a brief overview of the foundation's goals.

The Haliburton County Concert Band and the Times Four Saxophone Quartet entertained the audience prior to Hillary's presentation. As a special treat, Nima McElhinney Sherpa, formerly of Nepal and now living in Hamilton, Ontario, performed a traditional Nepalese song and dance.

Dr. Mingma Gyelzen Sherpa and his wife Phulhamu Sherpa accompanied Hillary. Dressed in traditional clothing of Nepal, they were available to talk to those who attended the function. The doctor expressed the appreciation of the people of Nepal for Canada's support in providing education and medical aid through the Sir Edmund Hillary Foundation.

Hillary's presentation included a slide show with some spectacular photographs from actual treks on Everest and other formidable mountains. It also showed the people of Nepal and what has been accomplished there with the help of Canadian funding and support from many other countries.

"I spend almost no time at all thinking about what happened in the past," Hillary told the audience at ASES. "There's

Hospital stays open

Emergency ward hours reduced again

By Andrew Milne

Minden hospital's hours of operation will be reduced to 12 per day, effective the end of the month.

The 12 hour operation will continue at least until the end of the fiscal year, at the end of March, 1996.

St. Joseph's of Peterborough, Minden's parent hospital, had announced last week that the facility would be closed. The Ministry of Health (MOH), however, in meetings with St. Joseph's November 8, told St. Joseph's they could not reduce the hours of operation of the emergency ward below 12 hours per day.

St. Joseph's said the move was due to financial pressures, brought on by the necessity of bringing physicians to Minden from outside the community in order to keep the wards open.

No additional financial support has been pledged by the ministry in concert with the decision. St. Joseph's has previously stated that continuing to run the ward for the rest of the year, in the absence of local doctors, would force them into running a deficit of hundreds of thousands of dollars, on top of the Minden facility's relatively modest $1.3 million annual expenditures budget.

Foster Loucks, director of the hospital, says he expects the 12 hour operation will be manageable, from a staffing point of view. Some of the doctors currently on the rotation, especially some coming from as far away as Barrie, might decide it's no longer worth their while, he says, but he expects enough doctors will be interested in staffing the hospital to keep it running.

The Ministry's move, says MOH spokesperson Paul Kilbertus, was due to information in a preliminary draft of the local Acting Health Services Board's (AHSB's) role study, which strongly suggested 12 hours are the absolute minimum hours of service for an urgent care facility in Minden.

Kilbertus also said the Ministry was surprised and disappointed at St. Joseph's announcement of last week.

Community leaders expressed qualified relief at the development.

Said Somerville Township reeve John Huke of the service reduction, "Well it's certainly going to create problems. There's no doubt about that... But I think it's great that it's going to stay open, even if it's only 12 hours. I guess half a loaf is better than none."

Areas of Northern Victoria county along the highway 35 corridor will be as much as 50 km from an open emergency ward during the hours Minden is closed.

Ambulances will not generally be routed to the facility, and the blue highway signs marking the facility will be taken down.

Paul Heffer, chair of the AHSB, said he was also relieved. The AHSB has previously stated that, should Minden's facility be entirely closed, it would make it extremely difficult for them to set up urgent care in the area after they take over responsibility for the hospitals — an event expected sometime in 1996 or 1997.

Said Heffer, "We definitely needed the support of the Ministry to go forward with our initiative. If everything had been shut down here, people would have been so discouraged about the health care availability in the community, it would have been just devastating."

Heffer also said the current situation is less than desirable.

Said Heffer, "There's certainly going to be perhaps times when you won't have the optimum coverage that we would like to have in place. The ambulance service people are definitely aware of the reduced numbers of hours, and they do have some time to plan around that as far as how they will handle that. It may require moving some of their ambulances around, having them on

Local health care future taking shape

by Andrew Milne

Acting Health Services Board executive director Foster Loucks says the way of the future for areas like Haliburton County may be through paramedics and nurse practitioners.

Loucks made his comments in the wake of announcement of the hours reduction at Minden hospital's emergency ward November 10.

Loucks said it's quite possible that, depending on demand Minden may not, in the long run, have a 24 hour emergency ward, or may not have an emergency ward staffed 24 hours daily by doctors, but that ambulance crews trained in paramedical care, and nurse practitioners stationed in the ward would take up the slack to make an emergency system that works better, and costs less.

Nursing personnel stationed in the ward, said Loucks, might be trained to the level where they are qualified to administer more complex care than currently, possibly guided over the phone by a doctor. Paramedical attendants, he said, are certainly another possibility worth considering.

Says Loucks, "In the longer run I think we can work with this business of 12 hours, and maybe in fact — and this is where I get rosy tinted glasses on — maybe in fact build an improved emergency system."

Loucks notes that similar approaches have been used in the rural US. Unfortunately, however, he says, most of the models available right now in Canada deal with urban care, not rural, and rely on primarily urban amenities such as 911 service. Getting together a workable system here, in rural Ontario, he says, is going to be a challenge.

Paul Heffer, chair of the AHSB, says systems put into place will also have to have a certain flexibility, to cope with changing demands. Emergency room infrastructure installed in Minden and Haliburton, he says, will naturally be adequate for 24 hour service, as this is no great complication. As demographics shift, he says, the system can be tailored to reflect that.

Heffer also said that the priority for the board now has to be getting on with those projects, getting the wards built.

Said Heffer, "The facility will be there, the usage will be monitored, and we will build for the future. If demand changes, and opportunities arise we will change the number of hours... We've got to be positive about the future, realizing that we're going to have to do more with less money, and there may be opportunities to provide services in a different way than they have been provided."

Heffer said the AHSB has approached the Ministry of Health regarding instituting paramedic care for the area.

There is a pilot project involving paramedic care already underway in Victoria county. Lindsay and District Ambulance service director Robert Duchene explains the program is being assembled under a program called the Ontario Pre-Hospital Advanced Life Support Study, or OPALS, announced by the previous minister of health and supported as well by the current administration.

The OPALS paramedic crews, do serve some rural areas, but will be based in Lindsay itself, and do not serve any areas further north than Fenelon Falls.

That's got one northern Victoria reeve somewhat upset. John Macklem, of Laxton-Digby-Longford, says he isn't too happy with the priorities that seems to reflect.

Says Macklem, "The Ministry of Health, and Minister Jim Wilson promised paramedics, or are thinking that is going to be some partial solution to emergency facilities... How are they going to deliver the service? That's the question. Does Lindsay count as rural Ontario? You're three to five minutes from a hospital in Lindsay. Here you're 30 to 50 minutes from a hospital."

This solution remains well in the future, however. Both Loucks and Heffer also say that the current situation, with the hours of operation of the ward reduced in the absence of any such provisions being put in place, could very well mean that, at the present time, access to medical care has been compromised in the area served by the Minden hospital.

Reform meeting

The Victoria-Haliburton Riding Association for the Reform Party of Canada will be hosting a public town hall meeting on Saturday, December 2 at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School at 2 p.m.

The main topic of discussion will be criminal justice and the gun control issue. Reform Party officials say the Liberal government has failed to address the situation with the controversial Bill C-68.

"The government's proposed gun control legislation will do little or nothing to improve public safety or the criminal use of firearms", the riding association says in a press release, adding that the crime rate has increased by more than 1,000 per cent since 1971.

"That is why Canadians are demanding criminal justice reform now," the release said.

Guest speakers for the event will be Reform Party justice critic Jack Ramsay and public affairs director of the Shooting Federation of Canada, John Perocchio.

A question and answer period will follow the speeches.

Admission to the meeting is free.

Rural health care to be addressed

Ministry promising action

A Ministry of Health (MOH) spokesperson said last week that the Ministry will be acting by the end of 1995 on some of the recommendations of a report on difficulties faced rural hospital emergency wards.

Said Paul Kilbertus, "The minister is from a rural community, he understands very well and what people have to go through. He's very keen on moving on this as quickly as possible. I do think he is pushing to have something out the door by the end of the year."

Kilbertus also said yes, some of the initiatives will ease the difficulties currently faced by facilities in Haliburton county.

The Scott report, presented by fact finder Graham Scott to the MOH March 22, recommended, among other things, that physicians in rural hospital emergency wards should be better paid and no longer on a fee for service basis, that hospitals with fewer than 5 physicians in the catchment area should not require the operation of 24 hour emergency rooms, and where practical, emergency services of neighbouring hospitals should be consolidated.

Kilbertus also said between 60 and 70 hospitals across rural Ontario are currently facing staffing serious challenges.

Heffer: "Obviously it's not ideal"

standby in different places, changing their borders of coverage. They have some flexibility there to ensure that we don't increase the risk to people that need immediate response. They're going to do their best, but obviously it's not ideal."

Heffer also said yes, making decisions about hours of operations based on usage statistics, leaving those who happen to get into trouble in the night hours when usage is down that much farther from help, is a difficult issue.

Said Heffer, "I don't know what the answer to that is. I guess we don't live in an ideal world, and there are restraints that are put on us. It's just something we have to do the best with, and that's what we're attempting to do now."

Loucks also said the access to care has likely been compromised by the reductions in hours, but efforts will be made to minimize it.

Hillary's presentation delights audience

still so much to do in the present and in the future."

At the age of 76, Hillary said that he is often asked when he is going to retire. His reply is: "Why retire when there is still so much work to be done?"

Response to Hillary's visit was positive. Nobody went home from the presentation at ASES disappointed.

As a director of the Sir Edmund Hillary Foundation, Ross Rigney has been involved with four or five events similar to the one in Minden.

"It went very well," he said. "It was as intense an autograph session as I've seen."

Rigney was impressed with the warm welcome Hillary and the Sherpas received, both from the people who came to the event in Minden and during his visit to Haliburton Highlands Secondary School earlier that day.

"I think they went away recharged," Rigney said. "We were really pleased."

Archie Stouffer Elementary School principal Peter Forgrave said he was glad the school was able to help by providing the venue for the event.

"It was a really impressive presentation, not only because of the climb, but also for what he's doing for the people of the Himalayas," he said.

Forgrave added that he thought Hillary was a very pleasant, down-to-earth type of person that everyone could relate to.

Forgrave was presented with a framed autographed poster to be displayed in the school as a memento of Hillary's visit. A book with some spectacular photos of the Himalayas was also given to the school for its library.

Sir Edmund Hillary is proudest of the accomplishments that have been made in Nepal; not the climbing of Mount Everest or any of the other formidable peaks he has scaled or the other successful adventures to such places as the South Pole.

His role in the construction of two hospitals, more than 20 schools and a number of medical clinics brings Hillary far more satisfaction than his fame as the first to conquer Everest.

"We have a great appreciation and respect for people like Zeke O'Connor, who is the president of the Foundation, and for the many people in Canada who've given us a lot of support," Hillary said.

During a press conference at Wigamog Inn, Hillary said, "If you are absolutely certain that you are going to succeed, why bother?"

Hillary said that his life has become sort of routine. He said that he and his wife, along with O'Connor and "various other friends" spend most of the month of April each year in the Himalayas.

"We visit the villages, talking to the people, checking on the various projects we've helped establish there and discussing any future projects the local people are ambitious to see undertaken," Hillary said.

He spends much of his time travelling around the world lecturing funds for the projects.

People often say they are envious of Hillary's lifestyle; his travels around the globe.

"This travelling can be very tedious at times," Hillary admitted. "It's nice once you get there and you meet all your friends and work together on projects. But the actual long distance travelling does get a little bit boring at times."

Hillary is a master of understatement. He described a night in a tent on a narrow ledge on the face of Mount Everest during a howling blizzard as "quite unpleasant." On his trek to the South Pole, the expedition had five farm tractors (Massey Ferguson) roped together in tandem, in case the lead tractor broke through an ice shelf.

"There were a number of occasions when we dropped the lead tractor into a crevasse," he said. "And when you dropped down into a crevasse when you were on a lead tractor, it was always a rather unpleasant experience."

Is the famous mountaineer constantly being asked for advice?

"I don't think young people are terribly interested in what older people have to say, he responded. "In general, I don't try to offer advice to young people unless they ask for it."

In spite of his fame, Hillary is very modest about his accomplishments.

"I don't consider myself a hero," he said, adding that his fame was a "creation of the media."

Motivation, Hillary says, is the most important ingredient for success. Without motivation, skills, strength and stamina won't guarantee success.

"I had very strong motivation," Hillary said. "I think motivation is the single most important factor in achieving success. It is necessary to be fit and strong and to have some technical skill. But, when it comes down to it, the desire to succeed — strong motivation is the most important factor of all."

People are interested in challenges,

Hillary says. That is why they are willing to travel so far to hear him speak.

Hillary said he had a number of role models. He named Ernest Shackleton as a heroic figure to him.

"He was a great explorer," Hillary said. "They always used to say about Shackleton, if you were in a really sticky situation — your life was at risk and all the rest of it — it was quite handy to have Ernest Shackleton along, 'cause he was sure as heck going to get you out of it. He was that sort of person. So, I greatly admired Ernest Shackleton."

People he admires are "all those who meet challenges, particularly if there is a bit of risk involved and they overcome the problems and succeed in the end."

Sir Edmund Hillary fields questions from newspaper, radio and television reporters during a press conference at Wigamog Inn.

Nima McElhinney (Sherpa) performs a traditional dance for the audience as part of the ceremonies during Sir Edmund Hillary's visit to Minden.

Board, students, teachers react to Grade 13 cut

By Andrew Milne

Local teachers, board administrators, and students say a government proposal to cut the Grade 13/OAC year leaves them with a lot of questions, and some concerns.

Education minister John Snobelen announced November 3 that a new four year secondary education system would be developed, and would apply to all students entering grade nine as of September 1997. Savings, he announced in a press release, would come to $350 million annually.

Ontario is the only province in Canada with a grade 13 year — and in a sense, now only has half of that, since a course of study including the fifth year credits, or Ontario Academic Credits (OACs) can with some difficulty be completed in less than five years — a system introduced in the late 80s.

OACs are generally completed by university-bound students.

The recent Royal Commission on Learning recommended that Grade 13 be done away with in favour of an educational program for three year olds.

Snobelen, announced the move in a package of other planned changes, including on-the-job training programs, and stated the changes were to give taxpayers "best value for their education dollars", as well as to deliver quality education.

Haliburton's superintendent of education Dale Robinson, responsible for setting curriculum in the board, says yes, working the advanced curriculum into a four year program is going to be a serious challenge.

Says Robinson, "There's going to have to be what we call compacting of curriculum. Those students going on to university are going to have to achieve in a shorter time what they're now taking five years to achieve. That obviously has implications for example, as to how much math they would study in a given year. Kids that were going on to university and hoping to be engineers or whatever, unless there are some pretty major changes at the university level, which also could happen, certainly would have to study more mathematics in a shorter period of time."

Robinson also speculated that, if other provinces with four year secondary programs are any kind of model, changes at the postsecondary level will also be necessary.

Says Robinson, "I think one thing that will be closely looked at is whether there will be such a thing as a three year BA any longer at university. I think that's one of the questions. Will we go to a four year BA, as the minimum amount of time you can spend to get a degree? That's fairly common in other provinces."

Robinson also said that there are still a lot of unanswered questions as to the technical details of the proposed changes. The Ministry of Education and Training (MOET) has promised a draft plan for implementing the changes by the end of March.

Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF) division president Louise Cooper says she has serious concerns about the proposed change — and believes that if the secondary curriculum alone is restructured, students simply aren't going to get the same quality of education as they do now.

Says Cooper, "Students will not leave the secondary schools with the knowledge they get now — at least the ones heading to university will not have the knowledge they have now — if they only restructure the secondary system. It has to be a system wide restructuring."

Cooper, a math teacher, notes that OAC students bound for computer science, math, or science programs currently take eight math credits in their five years — generally one credit in grades nine through twelve, and then three in the fifth year. To compact the same curriculum into four years, she says, would require students to take the equivalent of two credits of math per year. A similar situation occurs with science courses. That, she says, doesn't leave much room in the curriculum for anything else.

Cooper also says arguments that Ontario is the only province around with five years of secondary education are overly simplistic. In other countries, says Cooper, secondary years are years of specialization, and since the implementation of the Common Curriculum, Ontario's grade nine really doesn't fit that description any more. With the Common Curriculum still in place and Grade 13 gone, she says, Ontario's students will in real terms get three years of specialization, when other countries have five, six, even seven years.

So, she says, either the elementary system will also have to be restructured, or students are going to have to take an extra year at university to get the same results they're getting now — something that's going to make it harder still on the students and their families.

The OSSTF also, quite naturally, says Cooper, has concerns over the job losses that may be incurred. Estimates of the job loss reported elsewhere have been as high as 2,000 positions province wide.

Finally, says Cooper, she feels this is something of a betrayal from a government that promised during its election campaign that it would bring in no major changes without consulting the stakeholders.

"Where's the consultation on all this?" she asked.

Teresa Scheffee, student council co-president at Haliburton's high school, says she expects dropping grade 13 and expecting students to complete the program in four years is going to make it "a whole lot harder" for them.

Scheffee, who hopes to become a teacher some day, expects to split her degree over arts and math at university, to make herself a little more flexible in terms of job opportunities. She's in her fourth year at the high school, and taking some OAC credits already. She says they're a lot more interesting, but a lot more challenging too, and wonders aloud what it's going to do to students, if they have that much less time to do the same work.

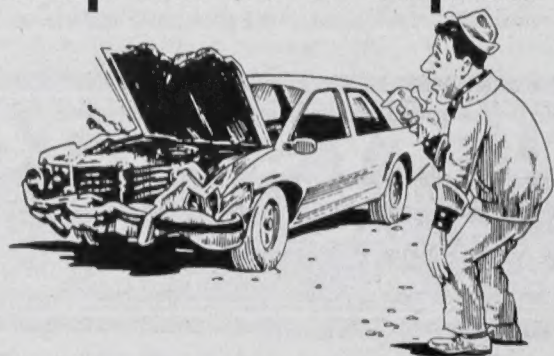

Says Scheffee, "Until I know more about it, it's hard to say, but it doesn't seem like a very good idea to me now."

Hodgson, McMahon, Rabjohn honoured at Warden's Banquet

by Jerry Grozelle

The Haliburton County Warden's Banquet was resurrected after being discontinued three years ago, during Chris Hodgson's term as warden. County council decided that the banquet was a good chance for municipal council members who aren't represented on county council to meet and discuss issues of common interest to all. It is also an opportunity for council members to see another side of their counterparts from other municipalities -- the personal side.

When county council meets, there is usually little time for personalities to come to the front. The business of the county is foremost and although a council member's sense of humour may shine through on occasion, there isn't much time for socializing.

The 1995 Warden's Banquet paid tribute to the current and past two wardens -- Ross Rabjohn of Sherborne et al (1995), Jim McMahon of Lutterworth (1994) and Chris Hodgson of Dysart et al (1993).

The underlying message of all three men was the need for co-operation between all municipalities of the county for the common good of all county residents. The challenges that county council faces in the future were also front and centre.

Each man talked briefly about his term as warden.

Hodgson was reeve of Dysart et al before being elected Victoria-Haliburton Member of Provincial Parliament in the March 17, 1994 by-election. He was re-elected with a huge majority in this year's provincial election and was entrusted with the Natural Resources and Northern Development and Mines portfolios by Premier Mike Harris.

Hodgson said he was "deeply honoured" to be chosen as warden by his fellow county council members in 1993. He said that his election as county warden took place at Highland Crest on his birthday. "It was a great birthday present," he said.

Hodgson said there were some "great discussions" during his term as warden. He joked that he really appreciated the input from Keith Tallman, a long-time member of county council. Hodgson explained that some of the discussions that he thought were breaking new ground were exposed by Tallman as old business, that had been deliberated on at

The Day After

Reflections on the Québec referendum

by Andrew Milne

Victoria-Haliburton MP John O'Reilly (Lib) says he hopes that, with the referendum out of the way, the government will be able to get back to the business he believes it was elected to do.

O'Reilly spoke to The Times October 31, the day after the results came in.

Yes, he said, like much of the country he was up until well past the last results came in. He heard the post-count speeches on the radio on Highway 7 on the way back to Ottawa, didn't get back to the capital until two in the morning, and was in his first meeting with the caucus to talk it over at eight. And yes, he says, it was an interesting day in the Commons.

He's happy the country is still in one piece, but O'Reilly said it isn't necessarily a bad thing the vote was so close. It is going to mean, he says, that reconciliation has to be taken seriously, and it may, if nothing else, teach a lesson about the cost of such exercises.

Said O'Reilly, "Strictly from a personal point of view, I'm glad it was close because it doesn't give bragging rights to anyone. Everyone kind of looks at it, and says you know, I worked my buns off, and it was only a one percent difference."

He's aware reconciliation may be difficult. Little in the behaviour of the Bloc leadership immediately after the referendum leads him to believe they are likely to be cooperative, he says.

"If you offer your hand," he says, "and the person won't shake it, there's not much you can do. I think certainly a line of communication has to be opened with the province of Québec, and not just a separatist line of communication."

He also, however, noted that he has met Bloc members who seem to be willing to talk. "I have Bloc members in the building that I'm in," he said, "and I came in early this morning, and we shook hands and talked. They're certainly disappointed, but they're not bitter."

O'Reilly says though there may be pressure from other provinces, once negotiations begin, to give up additional powers, he believes some of this can probably be accommodated. He also says he believes that certain areas should remain firmly in the federal sphere.

"There are certain things," he said, "that make our country vibrant and strong, and if you give those up to a province and the province decides they're not important to them, that's a part of the country that's going to go downhill."

Most of all, he says, he hopes the federal government will now be in a position to get back to what he believes is the business at hand — improving the country's economy.

"We inherited a situation," said O'Reilly. "You have to keep in mind that when the Liberal government took office, we didn't ask for the official opposition to be the Bloc. We were hoping that it would be the traditional Liberal, Tory, NDP, third or fourth party kind of thing, and that would have been a working government... Instead of that we got into a situation where really nothing in of any substance has been done in the last eight years to pacify any of the provinces. So there's not only a hostile feeling in Québec. There's hostility in rural Canada. Otherwise you wouldn't have the Reform Party coming out so strong."

Chris Hodgson, Victoria-Haliburton MPP (PC) said he is also quite happy the country is still in one piece.

Hodgson said he couldn't yet say what Ontario's position regarding proposals of special status for Québec might be. He did say he believes the referendum vote reflects a general desire for change, but that the government would have to talk to the people before deciding what stance to take.

Said Hodgson, "We've gone through those old lines dozens of times before — maybe we need to start talking about new things. We will listen to what the people of Ontario have to say... We're going to have to consult with the members of the caucus, members of the legislature, try to get a forum in which we can get the ideas of the people. It's everyone's country."

Sarah Ladurantaye, one of a number of Haliburton county residents who attended the October 27 unity rally in Montréal, says she was relieved at the results, though concerned it was so close.

Ladurantaye attended the rally with her family. Her father has roots in Québec. She says if nothing else, the entire experience has brought them a little closer to their extended family in Québec.

Says Ladurantaye, "More than anything, I think it's brought us closer to our family over there. We weren't really close to them before. We knew they were there, and they knew we were here, but we didn't really have a lot of contact with them."

Things for the family, however, she says, are likely to carry on for a while much as they have — at least until the next referendum on separation — something she believes is pretty much inevitable.

'Tis the season

The annual deer hunt is upon us.

The tradition has a long history for many families in the Highlands. For some, it is a time to rekindle friendships and catch up on the highlights from the past 12 months. For others, it is a family activity that is eagerly anticipated.

Still others dread the coming of the first Monday of November. They know it is the annual opening of the deer hunt, an activity that some find distasteful. To some of these people, the only meat that is acceptable is the kind you find at the grocery store, neatly packaged on a styrofoam slab, with an absorbent pad, all neatly wrapped with cellophane.

Most of the people who oppose hunting are meat eaters. It isn't the fact that people eat meat that is distasteful, it's the killing that they object to. The veal cutlet is always more palatable if you don't think about the calf that was kept restrained in a stall, unable to move, to ensure that its meat is tender.

Many people object to hunting because they think it is unsafe.

The fact is, hunting is safer than many sports and everyday activities. Snowmobiling claimed more than 30 lives in Ontario alone last winter, and it wasn't even a good year (weather wise) for that activity.

You are more likely to lose your life boating, fishing, riding a bike or driving a car than being killed while hunting, or by a hunter.

Others just don't like guns. Most will admit they don't know much about guns and they certainly don't care to learn. It's similar to people who fear or detest snakes or spiders. They don't necessarily know why, they just do.

Not all hunters are angels. But then, neither are all police officers, "domestic engineers", or even members of the clergy.

Hunters are not as tolerant of the "slobs" who give the activity a bad name as they may have been in the past. Those who abuse the natural resources; those who show disrespect for the rights and property of others; and those who act in a careless or irresponsible manner while hunting are quickly weeded out of most hunting groups. Today's hunter is acutely aware of the fact that his or her actions are judged as a reflection of all who pursue game for the table.

Hunters realize that if their tradition is to continue, there must be zero tolerance for any actions that will give fuel to the fires of the anti-hunting sentiment.

Most hunters appreciate the fact that the sight of a deer draped over the fender of a car is distasteful to some. The harvested animals are more likely to be transported to the butcher in the back of a pickup or trunk of a car these days.

Anti-hunters aren't any more likely to change their attitudes than an arachnophobic is to keep a pet tarantula. But, at least there is less reason for them to condemn the tradition than there was even a decade ago. As the hunter's image improves, more people will be willing to accept the pursuit, if not embrace it.

SIRCH management criticized

Dear editor:

There is a major problem in the delivery of services to the persons who are seriously mentally ill in Haliburton County.

In August 1994, a full-time therapist left the Haliburton County Counselling Centre under SIRCH Inc. and has yet to be replaced. A partial withdrawal of services for the seriously mentally ill occurred. In July 1995, the situation became critical when a part-time counsellor was available only one day a week for a period of six weeks. At the same time all support groups and therapy were arbitrarily cancelled. In late September 1995, there was again complete cessation of mental health services. A contract person was hired for three days a week for two weeks and full time until December 1995. This is only to provide crisis intervention and support clients of the Counselling Centre who are seriously mentally ill. There will be no full-time ongoing therapy. This is the second time in two months services have been interrupted. These actions constitute a complete misunderstanding of the needs of the seriously mentally ill. Two weeks later, we have no knowledge that a long term plan has been put in place.

Is this what mental health reform is all about? We think not. We find these events a breach of contract by SIRCH Inc. Staffing has been a problem since August 1994. SIRCH Inc. has proven that it is not a fit agency to meet the needs of the seriously mentally ill of this county.

We have had no answer to our questions from SIRCH posed at a meeting with SIRCH Inc. and the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Council held on August 4, 1995. On August 24, 1995, we had a meeting with a representative from the Ministry of Health to table our concerns.

There has been no understanding by SIRCH Inc. of the counselling process that dictates that "closure" must be done with clients in order to keep them stable before their counsellor leaves. Two therapists were fired in late September without notice. This action showed a complete misunderstanding of the seriously mentally ill. On October 5, 1995, a meeting took place at which 22 consumer/survivors, family, and community members voiced their anger, frustration, feelings of helplessness, devastation and asked "how are we

Huke miffed by Peterborough County's lack of support for Minden Hospital

Editor,

Congratulations and a big thank you to all those volunteers and elected municipal officials who worked for the past 18 months to keep the Haliburton and Minden emergency centres open. The recent decision by the Ministry of Health to have the Minden facility remain open until the end of the fiscal year are a direct result of the tireless efforts by many concerned residents of the three counties of Haliburton, Victoria, and Peterborough.

It is unfortunate that Peterborough county council would not support a resolution put forward by deputy-reeve

Peter Franzen of Galway township to support the Minden service remaining open. We can only urge those elected representatives to reconsider their position on an issue which could eventually put them in a position of requesting our support in the future. We are not only looking at health care, but at many issues which are about to change how we do business in rural Ontario. The survival of rural Ontario will require us all to cease protecting our own little piece of turf for immediate gain, and look at the entire area for the good of all concerned.

John Huke,
Reeve, Somerville Township

going to survive now", as a result of the actions of SIRCH, Inc. As of October 2, the county has had two suicide deaths, one unsuccessful attempted suicide needing airlift to Peterborough Hospital, and one planned suicide necessitating long term hospitalization.

We recommend that an agency such as the hospital, or an incorporated group of mental health service providers and consumer/survivors, family and community members, be allowed to take over the work involving the seriously mentally ill. We also recommend that SIRCH Inc., its management and board not be allowed to inflict such devastation and its consequences on such a vulnerable segment of society.

The trust that was, is no more.

A pie for Sylvester

If you want to be happy for an hour, get drunk.

If you want to be happy for three days get married.

If you want to be happy for eight days, kill your pig and eat it

But if you want to be happy forever, become a gardener.

Old Chinese proverb.

Well, yes and no. There are some hoe-scarred and weevil whipped veterans of the vegetable patch that will tell you that gardening is the shortest cut to insanity this side of sniffing glue at a Roger Whittaker concert. But truth to tell, there is something ineffably peaceful and fulfilling about cultivating a garden.

Especially for Canucks.

Let's face it — the territory we inhabit is not Tahiti or Tegucigalpa or even Fresno, California. Here in the Great White Etcetera we only get a few short weeks of respite between blizzards. What better way to spend those precious days than smack in the middle of a swatch of fresh tilled earth, trowel in one hand, seed bag in the other, feeling the rich dark loam ooze up between our bare toes?

Which, according to Beautiful Homes and Gardens is the way my Love Affair With Mother Earth was supposed to go.

It didn't quite work out that way for me this past summer. There was a lot more sweating and swearing in my Leafy Alcove of Delights than I thought there would be. Summer is over and I have, to show for my labours, a ragged row of turnips, 27 jade coloured granite-solid tomatoes, plus three ears of corn that the raccoons overlooked.

A cursory cost-benefit analysis indicates that the corn I eat from my garden this year will run me about $38.75 a cob.

I didn't try my luck with cukes this year. And it is probably just as well, because cucumbers as we know them are obsolete. The United States Department of Agriculture has come up with a new mutant cuke whose innards are as orange as...well, an orange.

Advantage? Well, the pumpkin coloured cucumber tastes like an ordinary cucumber but it packs way more beta carotene.

That may not turn your culinary crank, but its got health food experts all excited. Beta carotene converts to Vitamin A in the human body and Vitamin A de-ciency is a major cause of bone, tooth and vision problems in the third world.

Let's hope the USDA cucumber strain turns out to be as hardy as the forty tomato seeds that sprouted in a museum lab in southwest China last month.

Nothing really remarkable in that — tomatoes are one of God's more fool-proof crops. Heck, even I can grow them. What makes Chinese tomatoes kind of special is that they were found in a bamboo tube in an excavated tomb dating from the Han Dynasty, which would make them about 2,000 years old.

Apparently the tomatoes were more elongated than their twentieth century cousins, but they tasted just the same.

One last tale from the horticultural pages, then I must get back to my composting. This story isn't about gardening per se but it involves food — and the strategic military use thereof.

It seems a Frenchman by the name of Jean Bucquoy is setting up boot camps in the Belgian backwoods to train cream pie terrorists. Commander Bucquoy heads up the International Pastry Brigade. Their mission: to comb the world rooting out "those who believe themselves to be superior" — and to throw a cream pie in their face.

Commander Bucquoy practices what he preaches. He was arrested for hurling a pie at the French Minister of Culture.

Commander Bucquoy claims it was a snafued offensive. He'd really meant to throw the pie at Sylvester Stallone, but the movie star showed up too late.

Personally, I am prepared to become the Canadian liaison for the Save Jean Bucquoy Defense Fund.

Any organization that want to cream Sylvester Stallone can't be all bad.

Wardens say cooperation good for county

length by previous councils.

"I had the pleasure to serve with some great politicians," Hodgson said.

With much of his time spent away from his home near Haliburton, Hodgson said he didn't have the opportunity to be with his two sons Clayton and Cody on Hallowe'en. He was home after the event and he asked Clayton what he dressed up as on Halloween. Clayton replied that he went out trick or treating as a politician. When Hodgson asked what he wore to represent a politician, younger brother Cody, who is five, answered "a clown suit, dad."

When the laughter subsided, Hodgson said: "I can assure you he didn't pick that up at county council."

Hodgson said the county has faced some changes in recent years and "as usual, Haliburton County met the challenge."

McMahon said his term as warden was an interesting year.

"Every day was a different challenge, and that's what makes politics interesting, at least for me," he said. "You never know what you're going to run into."

He added that there have been roadblocks along the way and county council has faced those challenges head-on.

"We made quite a few changes within the county structure itself," he said. He cited downsizing, working more efficiently and following through on Wace Report recommendations, among others, as examples.

McMahon said that most people don't realize how much strain the responsibilities of warden puts on the families of those who serve in the position. With the multitude of meetings, a warden sees less of his (or her) family. He told a story of his daughter admitting that she had been close to being kicked off the school bus one day because she was being rowdy. She told her dad the driver threatened to "tell your dad" and that she had replied "go ahead, because I never see him anyway."

He said that the experience reinforced his appreciation for the support of his family.

"You do give up a lot of your family life, but deep down, they are still with you," he said. "I want to thank them for that."

Current warden Ross Rabjohn started off his speech with a light-hearted roast of the provincial government's hack and slash policies.

He said municipal politicians would be required to attend "Mike Harris' Municipal School, better known as the Impossible Academy," where they would learn to add and subtract at the same time — adding responsibilities and subtracting money to fund those responsibilities.

Many in the audience appeared uncomfortable with the roast at first. There was visible relief when Rabjohn admitted that he didn't "believe a word of any of that rubbish, and neither do you."

"The government is doing what it must do to balance he budgets, and we will have to do our part," he said.

Rabjohn said that the past year has been both rewarding and frustrating. On the positive side, the renovations and addition to the county building are finally under way. The frustrations include the wait while the old NDP government was replaced by the new Conservative government.

"We are now at the decision-making point," he said. "We have much to do."

In his capacity as MPP for the riding, Hodgson spoke on behalf of the provincial government. He assured the audience that his heart remains in Haliburton County.

"I still live here, my heart's here and my experience is here," he said.

Hodgson said there are challenges to be met, adding that he plans to work with Haliburton County council by providing the tools and flexibility to meet the challenges.

The municipalities represented by the three wardens who were being honoured at the banquet provided some funding for the special guests but it was made clear that, other than the special guests, those who attended the banquet paid for their own tickets. Costs to the supporting municipalities was minimal.

New organizer sought

Connelly steps down

"It's somebody else's turn, let's put it that way."

Lisa Connelly, organizer of Canada Day activities in Minden for four years now, is giving up the mantle.

To whom is still an open question. Connelly is hoping someone will come forward to take over.

Connelly has been organizing the celebration since the 125th anniversary celebration, when, she says, she innocently raised her hand to volunteer.

Said Connelly, "They were looking for people to volunteer... Nobody was offering to do July 1, so my hand went up. It worked out so well that I was asked by the president of the BIA if I'd do it again, and I said sure I would."

Connelly says part of the reason she is stepping down is that her new job makes it more difficult — her hours are more regular, and it's difficult to organize things with only weekends free, she says.

"I think it's somebody else's turn — to get the," she laughs, "glory." It is a really rewarding day, just tremendous. It would be a shame if it went by the side... It's a really great day for pride I think."

Connelly says her approach has always been to keep all the events free, and encourages service clubs and charities to participate, towards this end.

"It's the only day that all the organizations work together and it goes right back into the community," she says.

Connelly also says no experience or connections are necessary — she went in cold — and though it's a lot of work, a lot of it is already done — primarily by the service clubs, which tend to run their own events quite well.

She also stresses it can be fun. "And the people you meet," she says, "are just tremendous."

Anyone interested can call Connelly at home at 286-6280.

Redmen hockey team edged by Norwood in home opener

by Jerry Grozelle

A four-goal spurt in the second period wasn't enough for the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redmen hockey team to beat Norwood. The visiting Norwood Knights took a 2-0 lead in the first period and after falling behind 4-2, rebounded with four of their own to grab a 6-4 win.

The Knights cut the Redmen lead to 4-3 before the end of the middle frame of last Tuesday's Haliburton home opener.

Norwood scored three unanswered goals, including an empty net goal that a Norwood defenceman fired the full length of the ice into the centre of the yawning cage in the third.

Darryl McMillan opened the scoring for Norwood, banging in his own rebound at the 5:08 mark of the first period. With six seconds left in the opening frame, Jon Van Allen converted a rebound, making it 2-0 for the visitors.

Haliburton put one into the Norwood net with 6:10 left in the first period, but it wasn't counted. Dennis Woods made sure in the second period, scoring a power-play goal at the 1:25 mark. Josh Burk assisted.

Jackie Morrison tied the score with Haliburton's second marker, at the 5:09 mark. Bill Dovell passed the puck out from behind the Norwood net to Morrison in the slot. His quick wrist shot found the mark. Curtis Reynolds also picked up an assist on that goal.

Reynolds put the Redmen in front when he cashed in on a rebound, making it 3-2. Morrison and Dovell drew assists on that one.

With 1:55 remaining in the second,

Morrison scored his second goal. He broke down the right wing and beat the Norwood goalie while the Redmen were short-handed. Matt Galbraith and Jeff Wray assisted.

A minute later, Norwood's Mike

Moore scored his first of three goals, closing the gap to 4-3 going into the third.

Moore notched two more for the Knights in the third, including the game winner before Quinlan got the empty net marker.

The Redmen will travel to Lakefield tomorrow for a 1 p.m. game. They will play host to the I.E. Weldon Wildcats Wednesday at the Haliburton Arena. Game time is 8 p.m.

IN YOUR FACE: Haliburton goalie Brock Glendenning makes it clear to the Norwood attacker that he isn't welcome in his crease during last Tuesday's home opener for the Redmen. The Knights took a 6-4 win back to Norwood with them.

Paul Mayo scored a hat trick and one assist for the winners. Tran LaRue netted a pair and three assists. Single goals were scored by Wyatt Nesbitt (three assists), Ed Gibbons (one assist) and Glen Hall (four assists). Also assisting were Monty Miscio with two and Fraser Rogers with one.

Bantam B hockey

Omemees shades Monarchs 5-4

by Roger Hutchinson

In spite of a strong effort, the Minden bantam B Monarchs ended up on the short end of a 5-4 score when they played host to Omemees on November 4. Minden overcame a 4-0 deficit to tie the game midway through the third period. A goal by Omemees in the last five minutes of the game earned the visitors the 5-4 win.

Minden's Cam Neville put the first lights on the scoreboard, with an assist going to Shawn Casey at the 2:20 mark of the first period.

Omemees tied it up at 4:35, but the Monarchs regained the lead with 2:23 remaining in the first period. Neville got his second, when he tipped a booming shot by Cory Bull from the point.

In the second period, Omemees scored three in a row to take a 4-2 lead. One of those goals was scored on a power play while the Monarchs were serving the first five-minute major of the season.

With 1:58 remaining in the second period, coach Ken Casey (who was filling in for Jim Vanderlip) pulled Minden goalie Adam Payne for the added attacker. Omemees had a man in the penalty box, giving Minden the 6-4 advantage in manpower. Payne was hoping to cut Omemees' lead by a goal before the end of the middle period.

Although the puck was held in the offensive end most of those two minutes, Omemees managed to come up with the necessary saves.

Minden came out strong in the third period. Colin McKenzie scored Minden's third goal, assisted by Rod Upton and Dan Vanderlip. Upton scored, unassisted, to tie the game midway through the period.

With 4:32 remaining, in the third, Omemees scored on a power play. Although the Monarchs came close with a couple of good rushes, the score remained 5-4 in favour of the Omemees squad.

An interesting note: in the second period both teams were serving multiple penalties, so both benches were pretty bare and had little to offer in line changes. Double and triple shifting was common, with everyone getting lots of ice time.

Minden Junior Curling to start November 23

The Minden Curling Club's junior season will get under way on November 23.

The new season will start with two free days of curling. As Zelda Cooper explains, it will give the young people a chance to see if they like the sport before they, or their parents invest the $25 fees for the season. She said that curlers will be required to supply their own clean running shoes to be worn on the ice. They must be kept at the curling rink to ensure that the ice surface is not damaged by dirty runners. The free days will be November 23 and 30.

The junior division is for curlers aged nine to 20. They will all curl together, rather than separate them by different age groups.

The coaches will be Dana Kinsman, Bob Pollard and Alf Trotter, with other members of the club helping out as well.

Cooper said that some teams may participate in occasional bonspiels, depending on how many kids are available on weekends. "We would like to have our own in-club spiel," she said. "It will depend on the numbers and the response."

A parents/kids night is being planned and the season will be wrapped up with a banquet for the participants after the end of the season on March 28.

Anyone interested in participating in the junior curling program should contact Zelda at 286-2615 or Jean at 489-2005.

Residents enjoy Rusty's visit

Monday morning started with fitness with Janice. Later the folks filled trick or treat bags. In the evening several folks played cards.

Tuesday morning Marguerite Skinner conducted a cooking class. Alice Todd made Rice Krispies squares and pumpkin muffins.

They were yummy. In the afternoon we had a Halloween party. Everyone was dressed up. Reg Booth looked awesome in his bonnet. Linda Fry was a gypsy. She read the cards of several residents. We played games and ate the goodies which Alice prepared.

In the evening the residents took turns handing out goodies to the 175 trick or treaters who came to the home. They were treated to hot buttered popcorn while they viewed the costumes.

Wednesday morning it was fitness again. Janice read the local newspaper. The residents wrote a letter to the Fast family, thanking them for writing after they arrived in Saskatchewan.

In the evening Kathleen and Earl played music on the piano and fiddle..

Thursday morning there was an exercise session and in the afternoon the Stanhope Senior Ladies had a lovely luncheon for the folks.

Friday morning capable residents folded serviettes. Mary Wilson read to some folks.

The Biagis and Smoky entertained for Happy Hour.

Refreshments were served and several visitors were in attendance.

Rusty, the Dalmatian who visited on Saturdays has returned to the city for the winter. His owner, Janet Donnelly wrote a letter to Doris telling her about experiences she had with Rusty and some folks. She said it was very heart warming to see their reactions and see faces light up when they saw the dog. Janet says they will return in April for sure.

Sunday the folks had visitors and a reading session was held in the afternoon. Rev. John Burgess took the evening Chapel Service with Marion Fisher providing the music on the organ.

Birthday wishes go out to Ellen Blair this week. Don't forget the Auxiliary Christmas Bazaar and Tea at 2 pm on November 23. Only 46 shopping days till Christmas.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council notes

No action

Anson, Hindon and Minden council decided no action was the appropriate response to a Board of Education request for support for a smoking area for students on High School property.

Current policy forbids students from smoking on school property.

The school board is concerned about the safety of students, who stand on highway property to satisfy their habit.

Deputy-reeve Lewis Stevens pointed out that there would be very few students at the high school who are of the legal age to buy cigarettes. He doesn't think council should condone smoking by supporting a designated smoking area for students on school property.

Reeve Jeanne Anthon acknowledged the concerns about students on the edge of the road.

It was agreed that such school board business was outside the municipality's jurisdiction.

Fire truck for sale

The Minden Fire Department has received an offer to purchase the 1971 pumper truck that was retired a couple of years ago. The offer was considerably lower than the $5,000 the department had hoped to get, according to councillor Grant Plooard.

Plooard said that a number of people had looked at the truck, but only one offer had been received, so far.

Councillor Daryl Moore pointed out that in 1996, the truck will be 25 years old, which will qualify it as an antique. Moore suggested that some group or individual may be interested in buying the truck and restoring it as an antique.

Council decided to advertise the truck locally to see if there is any interest in the truck as an antique.

HCSA appreciates ice rescue initiatives

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association appreciates the efforts of local fire departments to train their firefighters in ice and water rescue techniques. In letters to the municipalities of Anson, Hindon and Minden and Stanhope, HCSA president Brian Watts congratulated them on their efforts, adding that it shows Haliburton County cares.

The HCSA enclosed cheques for $100 to each municipality in support of the initiatives they have taken to help save lives.

"As you know, the HCSA is a volunteer organization with tight budgets and a huge responsibility to provide millions of dollars of tourism impact each winter," Watts said in the letters. "It is rare that we make donations but we find this cause to be very worthy."

Stanhope council notes

Stanhope council decided to change to a quarterly system of tax billing. During discussions it was pointed out by Stanhope clerk administrator Gerald Bain that a quarterly system would stabilize the municipality's cash flow and possibly reduce the need to borrow, thereby saving on interest charges. He said it would also help to "stabilize the work load" of municipal staff. It may also reduce tax arrears by spreading slightly smaller payments over four instalments rather than three.

Bain said the four payment system wouldn't cost the township any more. The only possible down side may be in the interest that the township earns on deposited funds from taxes. But, as reeve Jock Mavor pointed out, the benefits of switching to quarterly payments more than offset any loss in interest revenues.

The change will take place with the issuance of the 1996 tax bills.

Bain also pointed out that it may be easier for taxpayers to make the smaller payments.

Performance bond

Stanhope Township plans to institute the requirement of a performance bond regarding the use of travel trailers. Property owners often move a travel trailer onto their lots while the construction of a permanent home or cottage is being constructed. To make sure that the temporary living quarters aren't used for an excessive amount of time, council intends to pass a by-law restricting the amount of time a trailer may be used while a permanent structure is being built.

Over budget

Township officials are hoping the next six weeks will be mild. With cuts in transfer payments, the Stanhope Roads Department has just $14,000 left in its budget to the end of December. A deficit of about $20,000 is expected.

A meeting will be scheduled in the near future to discuss possible savings regarding road maintenance.

Industrial park

Stanhope Airport manager Mike Carey suggested to council that a 12.5 acre parcel of land at the airport site may be suitable for commercial development. Carey said that there may be some businesses that would be compatible with the airport and it would be a good way of generating revenues for the township.

"It would be nice for the public to know there is a possibility for businesses to operate at the airport," Carey said.

Reeve Jock Mavor said he was nervous that tenants at such a location may complain about the noise of planes taking off once they are settled in.

The possibility will be studied in more detail.

No support

A letter from the Haliburton County Board of Education requesting support in its bid to establish a smoking area for students at the high school met with council's disapproval.

"It sounds like they want us to take responsibility for their inability to regulate smoking at the high school," said reeve Jock Mavor.

Deputy-reeve Eleanor Harrison pointed out that the vast majority of students at the high school are under the age of 19 and can't legally purchase cigarettes. "And they want us to legalize smoking on school property?" she said.

Reeve Mavor said he has been by the high school numerous times and he hasn't seen students on the highway smoking.

Next meeting

The next meeting of Stanhope Council conflicts with the monthly meeting of County Council. Since Stanhope has two representatives on county council, the Stanhope meeting has been changed to Wednesday, December 6 at 8:30 a.m. That is one week earlier than usual.

WHEN TRAVELING OUTSIDE OF CANADA..... BESURE! BESAFE! BECOVERED!

GDP not true measure of success

I returned to Canada in 1962, after eight years of college and graduate school in the United States. I turned down several academic offers to come home. Canada meant the CBC, Tommy Douglas, the National Film Board, medicare and Quebec, things that made this country different from the U.S. and, for me, preferable.

I once asked a Japanese politician what he felt Japan's main long-term goal was. He replied, "We want our economy to be number one." When I suggested that being number one must be a means to some more inspiring end, he didn't understand what I was talking about.

In the Canada I returned to, politicians spoke with sincerity and passion of a just, more equitable society, of a secure future for all Canadians, of protecting a heritage of rich and diverse flora and fauna for our children. Those were the ideals for which I came home and I have never regretted it.

But the October 30 Quebec referendum showed that enormous changes have taken place since the '60s. Increasingly, political rhetoric revolves around matters economic. Our leaders and the media now present the deficit, debt and economic growth as the dominant issues of our time. Last week the mayor of Caledon, Ontario recounted that members of the newly elected Ontario government told her that the economy and bringing the deficit under control are all that mattered; the environment isn't an issue.

Last month, when the World Bank released the countries and keep the GDP (Gross Domestic Product) rising. Those are the very same measures the World Bank imposes on impoverished developing countries under the tithe children and the family lives frugally, sharing farm machinery, labour and products with their neighbours. Mary volunteers with the community centre and hospital while Bob is a Boy Scout leader and coaches his son's hockey team. Bob and Mary are classed as underproductive members of society because they contribute little to the GDP.

Bob and Mary's son is hurt in a terrible car accident. His need for an ambulance, intensive care unit, hospital personnel and medicine all contribute to a rise in the GDP. The boy dies. Bob and Mary must pay for the funeral home, flowers and grave diggers. It's good for the economy - the GDP goes up.

The tragedy puts a strain on the marriage. Bob places his parents in an old age home. The GDP grows. Bob moves to the city, rents an apartment, buys a car, gets a job. The GDP increases. Mary stays on the farm, takes out a mortgage, puts the children in day care, hires a farm hand, takes a job in the grocery store. She is helping to build up the GDP. Bob and Mary have become contributing, productive members in a society that measures progress in terms of the economy.

The No vote gave us a brief reprieve; an opportunity to reflect on what Canada is and rethink what we want it to be. If we don't, why should the Quebecois want to remain a part of us?

Reflections

by David Suzuki

results of a new way of measuring a nation's "wealth" by incorporating natural and social factors as well as traditional economic indicators, Canada ranked second in the world. People, communities and our ecological heritage make this country special, yet they are being subordinated by monetary concerns.

If we learned anything from the ulcer-inducing debate in Quebec, it was that political "leaders" outside of Quebec lack an uplifting vision of Canada. While Quebecers were being inspired with a sense of history, culture and belonging and expressing their desire to support their elders and medical and education systems, the rest of Canada was being told that Quebec separation was too costly, threatening the economy, jobs and the value of our dollar. What an empty vision. Yet, more and more, we are bombarded with the message of our need to cut government services, to reduce our debt, to increase foreign trade and investment with other tle of "structural adjustment."

Quebec's crisis offered us an opportunity to re-examine what Canada means, and what we value most, the things that make us proud and are worth preserving. The Canada that I chose to return to believed in sharing between the have and have-not provinces. There was pride in the notion that all Canadians deserved the best education and medical care. Communities boasted about their neighbourhoods, local merchants and small businesses.

Today, growth in the GDP has become a measuring stick of "progress", the standard of well-being that governments and industry do all they can to keep rising. But it is an insane and destructive gauge of the things that really matter. Family, community and ecosystems. Consider this:

Mary and Bob live on the family farm in a small prairie community. Bob's parents live with them and help to care for the children. Mary home-schools

SNOW REMOVAL

The Highway Traffic Act RSO 1990, Section 170 (12), states "...no person shall park or stand a vehicle on a highway in such a manner as to interfere with the movement of traffic or the clearing of snow from the highway". A constable or County By-Law officer may have the vehicle removed from the roadway and stored at the owner's expense.

Section 181 states "No person shall deposit snow or ice on a roadway without permission in writing to do so from the Ministry or the road authority responsible for maintenance of the road. The penalty on conviction is a fine of not more than $90.00.

The cooperation of all motorists in these matters would be appreciated for efficient winter maintenance of County Roads and the safety of others.

CARDS OF THANKS

The Stanhope Recreation Committee would like to thank everyone for making our Children's Hallowe'en Party a great success. Special thanks to the ladies who did a great decorating job, to Dawn Mole and all the students she had helping with games for the kids and to all those who baked goodies for the day. Without all these dedicated volunteers the party would not be possible.

Sincere thanks to Stanhope Fire Department who responded to my call in the early hours of November 3. Making the frightening ordeal easier were the smiling faces of Doreen Bullied, Shirley Wallace and John Hogg.
After arriving in Haliburton Emergency, I looked around and saw two friendly faces, Paula and Brad Thorne, who stayed with me and returned me home.
To each of you I say thanks for being there.

A special thank you to the members of Royal Canadian Legion
Branch 441 and to Bruce Newman the DJ, the Lions Club and the community of Kinmount for their kindness and support
since the loss of our home to fire.

Emery, Rose and David Crane.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to thank our family and friends for all their love, support and prayers during and after David's funeral. Also to all who brought food, sent cards, letters and flowers and made memorial donations to the Minden Hospital in David's name. Your thoughtfulness will not be forgotten. A special thank you to the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home for all their help and compassion.

Lisa and Matthew Besner and Tom, Marilyn, Tommy & Kimberly Bagshaw.
